Following them came the maid of honor, Miss Vera Warren, of Oliver, Texas. Miss Warren wore a gown of white tulle with a cascade of white bouffant tulle, with a cascade of white tulle over it. There was a high tulle collar and the small sleeves were of white silk net. She wore long white gloves. Her small hat was made of white tulle with streamers extending from the sides and an arm bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley tied with white net streamers.

The bride entered with her cousin, Perry Jackson, of Cleburne, Texas, who gave her in marriage. She wore an exquisite gown of white tulle with imported all over white Venetian lace. The bodice was draped and interlarded with the cloth of silver. The skirt had deep back and the Venetian lace caught here and there in a graceful manner with dainty buckles. The gown was a Georgette model. The bride wore a white tulle and she wore mippers of cloth of silver. Her bridal veil was of the same rare old lace of which the gown was made, and was attached to her head with spray of short orange blossoms, the gifts of friends in California. Her bouquet was in silver effect, of white roses and lilies of the valley, tied with streamers of embroidered tulle and lace.

The groom and his best man, Jack Hayes, entered from the east door. Mrs. Rue Jackson, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black satin with sprays of chiffon and Georgette crepe. Her hair was done in waves, trimmed with bird of paradise plumes. The bride's party left the church to the music of Mendelssohn's wedding march. The bridesmaids wore white shepherdess crooks overhead, and an archway for the bride and groom to pass under.

A reception at the bride's home on Mesa avenue followed the ceremony. The bride's party received the guests in the drawing room, which was decorated attractively in pink roses and white carnations. The table was covered with pink and white, and the table was decorated with pink roses and white carnations. The wedding cake occupied a place of honor on the table, which was ornamented with pink roses in silver vases and pink candles. The wedding cake was prettily frosted and ornamented with roses and small doves.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter left on the Golden State limited for San Diego, California, where they will spend their honeymoon attending the Panama-Pacific exposition. The bride and groom will visit in Los Angeles before their return to Alamogordo, N. M., where they will make their home as the groom is in business there. The bride is a popular member of the younger set of both El Paso and Alamogordo, as her mother has a big country home in Alamogordo where the family usually spend the summer.

Tuesday night before the church rehearsal of the wedding, Mr. Hunter entertained his bride at dinner at the Harvey House. The table was attractively decorated with roses. The guests included Misses Ella Mae Jackson, Vera Warren, Helen Huser, Ellen Hunter, of Alamogordo, Messrs. Jack Hayes, Marshall Parker, Perry Jackson, of Cleburne, Tex., Ben Hancock, Howard Marshall and Elmer Husering.

Cards. Mrs. James Yates entertained the Silk Stocking Club Tuesday afternoon at her home on Mesa avenue. Miss Marion Lindsey was the only guest. Mrs. Charles R. Loomis was the high society prize. Mrs. R. L. Hines will be the next hostess of the club.

The Merry Maids and Matrons Bridge club was entertained Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. L. A. Rife, at her home on Montana street. Miss Grace Talbot won the high score prize for the club members and Mrs. E. Talbot for the guests. The second prize went to Mrs. H. Orlop. A salad course was served after the games. The guests in addition to the club members, were Edna James E. L. Peyton, E. Talbot and E. E. McNett. Mrs. T. Salazar will entertain the club at its next meeting.

Lodges and Clubs. The John C. Brown camp of the United Confederate Veterans will meet in the class room of Trinity Methodist church Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Knights and Ladies of Security entertained the members and friends of the order with a dance and banquet Tuesday night in the hall on the corner of Oregon and Overland streets. About 250 people were present. For the banquet, the table was decorated with red and white carnations. R. F. Davis was the chairman of the arrangements.
